

The words thank you seems so small. But, there are no words to describe how grateful I am to Paws 4 A Cure. You saved my pups life. Brie came to us a few years ago. The beginning of her life was sad. She lived in a 10x10 crate with a bark collar on. She went from a shy dog that did not bark to a happy, healthy dog that is attached to our other two dogs. That is until about 1 1/2 weeks ago. She stopped eating and playing. She just laid around and slept. She started bleeding from her vulva and it had a bad odor. Took her to the vet and she had a wbc of 40,000. She had a pyometra - an infected uterus. I did not know what we were going to do. I am on disability due to being on dialysis and my husband has been unemployed for the past 4 years. We got into contact with Paws 4 A Cure and the day after we sent in our information the vet was calling to say they had heard from Paws 4 A Cure and to bring her in. Brie was in surgery later that day. A 3.6 pound infected uterus was removed. It would probably have exploded in the next day or two. Now less than 48 hours later Brie is beginning to act more like herself. She is eating and wagging her tail and wants her tummy rubs. She needs to be kept quiet for the next 10 days or so. That will be hard she already wants to run. So, the words thank you seems so small and insignificant. Those words are just not big enough to express the gratitude towards Paws 4 A Cure when they were instrumental in the saving of a life. The life of my baby girl.
