

Hi everybody,

This is my best friend Spooky (Havanese). He is a 6 year old little boy, and four years ago he was attacked by a Coyote and left for dead. His ear canal was severed, that leaves him with severe, constant ear infections. He needs to have an operation, which is a complete ear canal and ear drum removal, so that he doesn't have to be constantly on antibiotics and in pain. He scratches himself until he is bleeding, because it bothers him so much and the ear needs to drain. He has become progressively worse over the last two months and we need to be able to have him taken off the meds so that he doesn't have triggers of Epilepsy and low immune system that causes him to be in pain all the time.

I just lost my job, because I was diagnosed with metastatic, incurable, breast cancer. So, I can't afford to pay that much for his operation and would be so thankful if anybody can help. Spooky is really my partner that keeps me going!!! It is hard for me to see him in pain too especially if you know he just would do anything to please me….

May I have your help?

Thank you so much!!!
